Old Time Classics

If your favourite is not on the list please ask

Mint Julep The mint julep was originally prescribed as medicine and appears in literature as early as 1784. The official drink of the Kentucky Derby. Bulleit Bourbon, mint, Angostura Bitters and soda	£8.50
Gin Fizz The first printed reference to "fizz" is in the 1887 edition of Jerry Thomas' bartender's guide. The fizz became widely popular in America between 1900 and the 1940s. Bombay Sapphire Gin, lemon, egg white, Maraschino Cherry and soda	£7.50
Mojito In Havana in 1586 the mojito was created by combining aguardiente (the crude forerunner of rum), sugar, lime, mint and water and was served with a wooden spoon embellished with a cock's tail (thus cocktail!) in place of a handle. "Mojo" is actually an african word meaning 'to place a spell', the name mojito (basically meaning 'little spell') was then formally adopted. Bacardi Carta Blanca Rum, mint, lime, soda and Angostura Bitters	£8.50
Classic Champagne Cocktail The Champagne cocktail, dates back from the iron age of American mixology – that final prehistoric period between the invention of the cocktail, whenever that was, and 1862, when the first cocktail book was published. Remy Martic VSOP, sugar cube, Angostura Bitters and Champagne	£11.50
Old Fashioned The recipe for this drink was said to have been invented by a bartender in a gentlemen's club in Kentucky, which was then taken to the Waldorf-Astoria hotel bar in New York in the 1800s. Bulleit Bourbon/Rye, Angostura Bitters and sugar	£8.50
Dark'n'Stormy According to a legend, the name dark 'n' stormy was coined by a sailor sometime after WWI who, while enjoying the cocktail, commented that it was the "colour of a cloud only a fool or a dead man would sail under." Gosling Black Seal Rum, lime and Old Jamaica Ginger Beer	£7.50
